

MONETARY

I, Mother Nature, am bridging the gap of understanding about the wealth of nature that assists you in your day-to-day life. I am the connection that is not breakable while you traverse the earth and within this world. I am the feather you might feel across your forehead at times when you require comfort, or perhaps the hug you require when feeling lonely or a little down in the areas of life that seem hard to negotiate. I am the one that will honour all of you even though you only honour your physical shell. I am the one that makes certain you are provided with the sunshine of life, the moonlight of dreams and your star that protects you from swaying off your chosen path. I provide you with the creatures that are assisting you, even though you might not notice them. If you are not aware of them, they are aware of you, and that one-way form of energy you are receiving might not be a conscious one at this timing, but it is an energy one. Thank you indeed. Energy connections are mainly silent but helpful to change you in a small but firm fashion.

So, where does that lead us on this day? You have a wealth of assistance to live day-by-day in a healthy form of living and learning, and you may be unaware of the connection. Wealth is what you term monetary and that is correct. Monetary is for all people, everywhere, and it has not much of anything to do with the tangible or intangible aspects of money, or the financial web that has been created for those who have, and has neglected for those who have not. Society connects monetary wealth with financial wealth, and that is a very small and unimportant aspect of life on earth. Your monetary value is all about you personally. Yes, you might consider it to be a small part of yourself as you travel through life, but your wealth is able to grow exponentially these days. Yes, that is a fact. Your wealth or monetary value increases with each step that you take to understanding more about yourself. It will increase your self-esteem, your sense of worthiness and also your sense of propriety and your sense of the common. In other words, when you blend the knowledge you have of being a physical body with other bodies within it, with your senses of many varieties, you become a bigger and better individual force of monetary value.

Now, you know the secret of life – you are a human being that has connections to all of nature, because you are part of nature. All plant life assists you to live comfortably, all creatures assist you with your emotional removal and all forms of other, often taken for granted aspects of life, are providing you with life in the form of water, heat and substance. As a human being, recognizing your connection with the senses and knowing your monetary value, offers you a bigger and widespread concept of how important you are on earth, for the world, and for all of its people. Thank you indeed.

Remember always – your monetary value is yours. It entitles you to know that you are part of nature, part of All That Is and part of being yourself on earth, and being yourself on earth honours you in all of your bodies.

Exclamations about life being great is not a fallacy and is the way to understand yourself in a bigger and better framework than before. Make a chart and put the word MONETARY VALUE at the top and then list all of your highlights of your physical body, your mental body and your emotional body and then you will see how valued you are at this timing on earth. Pat yourself on the back for being here and being willing to learn more about your life and no longer take it for granted. You are on earth for a reason and that reason is to make certain you are aware of your energy connections.

Thank you indeed and good day.
