

LULLABY

I, Mother Nature, am with you on this day and in this way of communicating with you, in order for you to understand what I am stating in your language of choice and in the concepts of what you are able to take into yourself at this timing. Thank you indeed.

Over the timing you have been on earth and in the time that you are experiencing right now, you have learnt a tremendous amount about yourself. You know basically that you are a human being, and everything else you might sum up to be a replica of who you want to be, plus a presence of who you are.

I, Mother Nature, am with you and have been with you for all of your lifetimes on earth, because I am what is termed to be a mother figure for all of nature and human beings are part of that nature. I know, you have always thought that nature was trees and plants only or maybe a few creatures thrown in, but when I was provided with this job of mine, I was granted the privilege of having all on earth as my children. All! That means the sun and moon and stars and clouds. It means the rocks and water systems and the aspects of what is inside the earth. It means the growth of everything possible with the ground's support. It also means all creatures that live by themselves and hopefully without a challenge from humans, and the creatures that humans have control over. It also includes humans. So, that is quite a family for sure. I have a very large family, which means I have a very large capacity to love and cherish everything that is my responsibility. All that are in my family help each other along the way. It means that you are you as a human, and another soul will be a creature, and in your storyline, you assist each other in each lifetime you spend on earth. You learn from the connections – connections with each other in my family, but also connections with others in the universe itself. Now then, let us look at how my job of being a Mother has affected you over time.

Now, I would say that the first item you might notice is how well everything moves along moment by moment. That means everything is changing moment by moment. The sun moves in and out of your vision and so does the moon, but the positions in the sky alter each moment as well. That means that the potency of them varies in your vicinity. The weather is dependent upon the amount of time and the position of both the sun and the moon. Therefore, everything in nature in your vicinity will be different from someone else's in a variant place on the earth itself. That is a fact, and likely you will understand that quite well. However, there is another connection that perhaps you hadn't thought of at all, and it is the timing to recognize what you require to live. All food is grown with its attachment to light and to the sun of course, but the earth is recognized and valued and affected more so by the moon, because of the currents. Now, you understand currents in the water systems, but perhaps you did not recognize that the earth has currents and so does the air. So, you have water, earth and air having currents and all of those currents affect you as a person in your blood flow. So, you are connected by currents, and those currents are of energy of course. Did you know that your blood flow was energy that is regulated by the currents of the air, earth and water or did you just recognize that it has to do with your heart beating? Interesting question and the answer is easy for you of course, because as a human, you have the potential to learn more each and every day and recognize when it is something new and important. Your current connection is very important at this timing especially, because of all that is changing in the world as you know it. Thank you indeed.

So, let us take this one step further. Each creature – whether really small and crawling or flying around has currents that connect with you. That means if a mosquito or blackfly decides to meet and greet you, it is because you are connected and they are able to note where you have a current or energy blockage and by biting you, they are able to release that blockage. They are doing you a favour. But of course, they also are allowing you to become emotional about them and therefore you are releasing your emotional buildup somewhat at the same timing. They are providing two definite benefits to you with each bite. Rather exciting, wouldn't you say? No? Well, when you rid of your emotional buildup, they will no longer have the same connections with you, so you are in charge of that happening, rather than them. That is what happens with the smallest on earth as far as creatures go.

Then we have the other little varmints you entitle them. They are able to connect with you about whatever you require at this timing of change and especially the timing of your personal changes. If you have a fear of some sort, you will see or experience a rabbit. If you have a trepidation of some sort, you will see a deer that reminds you to be gentle with yourself. If you see or are repelled by a snake, it is letting you know that something is coming to your life that needs to be respected. That is just a few of the many, many forms of creatures on this world at this timing and each one – yes, each one – is here to assist humans. Thank you indeed.

As the earth keeps changing and altering itself in the energy levels of vibration or currents, you are doing the same, and what does a Mother do when the children are needing comfort? She sings or hums a lullaby or maybe reads a story that allows the calming and accepting to appear, that it is the time to let go and relax. A Lullaby is a pleasant interlude between the old and the new, the release of what is bothering you and the welcoming of what will provide acceptance of what is. A concept that all is moving and changing and all is good because of its ability to change in every way possible. Change the thoughts and you have a big change in all aspects in the physical world. A change in thoughts is able to honour your emotional baggage and rid of it. Change of thoughts – how does that happen? By incorporating newness of information and a better understanding of what is. That is what I am doing as your Mother. I am providing information that is similar to a lullaby, so you are able to comprehend yourself and your connections to the earth at this timing.

I, Mother Nature, am sure you will be enticed to see more and feel more and taste more about what the world is offering you from itself. Nature is here to stay on earth at this timing and provide what it is that you require at this timing. People come and go and so do the creatures, because it is a learning experience. Mother Nature stays and sees all being born, living a certain length of timing and then leaving the earth itself as they follow that current we have been chatting about. The remains of humans and creatures and trees and plants and all that is on earth that you can observe, simply return to the earth or soil itself. Everything was brought to you via energy and its magic of invention and creation of items required, and it requires a seed and an egg to do so. Hence, all on earth are either the provider of the seed or the provider of the egg. All in nature is the same.

Thank you indeed and good day.
