Your Connection to Nature

I, Mother Nature, am with you at this timing and in this mode of communication, to introduce you to a mode of interest that you might wish to find out about - your connection with nature.

When you were little, you would bend or squat down to find items on the ground that you were interested in. It did not matter if it was a piece of dirt, a piece of grass or weed, a flower. Everything was interesting, because it was within your reach, your eyesight and your energy connections to all that was surrounding you. You admired the sounds of the birds, the sounds of the trees swaying in the breeze and of course the sounds of water, whatever its size or where it was located.

The energy connection defined what you were most interested in, but all of nature was fascinating to gaze upon and learn about. Your interest might have become stronger in one of the three ingredients of nature that you were introduced to as you grew up. So, sometimes you liked to know what was happening in the air, with the birds, the sounds of the planes and helicopters and anything else that would rise above the earth's surface. Sometimes though, you were more fascinated with anything that could come from the earth, whether it was vegetation, or creatures, or forms of transportation such as cars, trains, trucks and anything else that stays on the ground. You had a lot of choices in that regard, but you might have stayed with the original of your interests and become entrenched in the learning of it.

On the other hand, you might have been fascinated with anything in the water. Now, that means you enjoyed putting your hand in the water, your face in the water or just swimming with your whole body covered in the water itself. Sometimes you liked the salted water and sometimes the fresh, or maybe it was the sound of all water as it does what it needs to do on the earth itself or in your world, as you call it. Water is very interesting of course, so maybe you were interested in being under the water to learn about the plants and creatures of the water, or maybe you liked to be part of what the submarine is able to do. Many options of course.

So, if you are interested in one of these three, you will now understand why your life has proceeded in the way in which it has. Air people are very alert to what is happening within them that stimulates their interest in regard to flying in some fashion. Do you fly through life and enjoy the ride, or do you recognize that sometimes you will fall out of that tall tree? So, enjoy the air, but take care in what you enjoy about it. Breathing is connected to the air of course, so make certain that you keep your ideas about the air in a confident aspect. Your very life depends on the air, but if you are an air enthusiast, you will understand that you will always have safety with the air as your friend.

If you are an earth enthusiast, you will understand how it feels to be secure on the earth and how sturdy it keeps your thoughts as well. That is a fact.

If you are a water person, you are very aware of how the water guides you through life and brings you to many corners of the world, with interest in all aspects of salted water or clear water or water that just keeps flowing from one level of earth to another. You are aware that it is best to appreciate the water and enjoy the results, and that water that is drinkable is so important to you personally.

So, there are three aspects of life as you connect with nature. Everyone is energy-connected to all three of course, but your interest in life is more connected to just one of the three. That is where you will find your ability that is yours for this lifetime and all other lifetimes that you have had, and of course it is the connection to what is deep inside of you and best for you to know.

If you have not reached out to one or the other consciously in this lifetime, it is the correct timing to do so.

Thank you indeed and good day.
