

MONARCHY

I, Thor, the Ultra Energy of the Universal All That Is, am with you on this day and in this mode of communication, in order to share some interesting tidbits about society at large, society in divisions and perhaps society as it might be. Thank you indeed.

Society is a word that seems to be the description of the world's people and their mode of living. Does that sum it up at all? Society seems to be divided monetarily — those with money feel they owe the rest of the world information about how they have succeeded. They ream out others because they haven't succeeded, or they take advantage of others who are not of, what they call, the same calibre of human. It does not matter what country they are in, and it does not matter what gender they are — everything appears to be connected to a monetary value. Thank you indeed.

The people who have, want to keep it. The people who have little, want to be better or maybe not, with not much strength of will. The people in the middle might dream of having more and some just accept where they are and just might have the correct attitude about it all. So, the criteria of the word society is based on money and has been for many, many years. As soon as you have more – you are able to do more of what you want to do. Interesting of course, but not valid in thought and actuality, taking place in the world at this timing. It is the time of change. So, if you would do anything in the changing aspect of yourself or others, what would you change? An interesting question of course.

Change is a word that is implemented by nature at every moment in timing. The size of nature's ingredients changes, the age of each change, the health of each change, the attitude toward them and harm of humans creates even more changes. You are part of nature, did you understand that? It is the truth. You are on earth at this timing and you are part of nature and you are changing by the moment as well. Have you grown? In some ways it could be physical, but also with your thoughts upgrading, your emotions being eliminated and your energy aspects more evident. Those changes are big and noisy in some fashions. But in understanding yourself just a little bit better each day, you are joining the factions of the monarchy. What does that mean? The word monarchy is one where a family within an area of the world is deemed to be in charge of that world. Not in a religious format of course, but in the concept of having everything in their life in the scope of the best of the best and sharing it with others. It could be physical sharing, or thought sharing, or habits sharing, or taking care of yourself sharing, or perhaps in the aspect of being willing to stay confident and not unfairly treating others in a variant way than they treat themselves. In other words, they stand in the country of choice as individuals who are assisting you to see, hear, feel, taste and touch yourselves in the best mode of human being. They turned out to be targets though in the world these days and are definitely not to be exposing themselves as individuals who are educating themselves just as you are doing. Some want to experience the negative and some want to experience the positive and some are experiencing ill health as part of their education to make certain that they understand their own value. It is all changing, within the actual monarchies of the world and within the monarchy of yourself. That is a fact.

You too are being asked to stand tall and honour yourself, respect yourself in your day-to-day life and please, make certain that you accept what anyone says about you and note that they have right to do so. Now, that is not a nice attitude, is it? Well, it is the attitude you are thinking reigning monarchy are expected to do. No matter what decisions they make, you are willing to make certain that you do not agree or that you do agree with it. Does it make a difference, do you think? People are people. Everyone is on earth to learn about themselves, and society has placed a huge burden on people born into the monarchies of the world. Thank you indeed.

However, I am suggesting that you are able to become the monarch you desire to be at this timing. What is that? A person who shares their life with others in confidence, in the knowingness of manners and how to accept all people on earth as being equal. That is what the monarchy is doing – accepting all in their countries as being equal – equal in their right to their own opinion, equal in the right of knowing who they are, how they are utilizing their talents and of course, in sharing what is desired by others when the timing is correct.

That is all for today – you are a monarchy in your day-to-day life. Are you willing to accept yourself as you are, are you wanting to increase your abilities usage, your confidence in yourself, or your belief in the concepts of what was that is now able to change. If so, you will be able to step silently and confidently into the new you.

Thank you indeed and good day.
